

Crowbowl Recap

On Saturday, November 6th 2010, over two hundred Brothers, Postulants and friends participated in the 2010 Crowbowl flag football tournament at Temple University's Ambler campus. The event was hosted by our chapters at Drexel University ($\Lambda X \Phi$) and Temple University ($E \Phi$). Fourteen teams from eight different chapters were in attendance vying for the Crowbowl tournament trophy.

After a long day in the chill November weather two teams remained atop the standings, Bloomsburg University ($O X \Phi$) and Drexel University. Drexel had recovered from an early loss and persevered through the loser's bracket for a shot at the championship, and Bloomsburg steamrolled through their competition to reach the final. The game was decided by a failed extra point attempt to tie everything up with less than a minute to go in regulation. As time expired Drexel was victorious over Bloomsburg 27 to 26.

In addition to a day full of football and camaraderie there was also a fundraiser taking place at the event for the Alexander Williamson Memorial Scholarship and the Jeffery Ake Family Trust, which raised over three thousand dollars. Adam Marsh ($\Lambda X \Phi$ '11), Drexel President and Resident Councilor stated, "Crowbowl is a special time where the Brotherhood from across the nation comes together in friendly competition and shares our common bond."

$\Lambda X \Phi$ would like to extend a thank you to all of the Chapters and Brothers in attendance. Thank you to Brother David Luckenbill ($\Omega \Phi$ '05) for photographing the event, Brother Jonathan Todd ($E \Phi$ '08) for reserving the playing fields and Brother Andrew Cardamone ($\Lambda X \Phi$ '13) for running the successful event.
